

Values into action: making alliances to develop education

Monday 23 May 2011 10am–4pm

Institute of Education, University of London, 20 Bedford Way, London WC1H 0AL

A one day conference to mark the publication of the revised edition of the Index for inclusion; developing learning and participation in schools, by Tony Booth and Mel Ainscow.

This event is jointly organised by CSIE, the Institute of Education, University of London, and the Centre for Commonwealth Education, University of Cambridge.

Values into action:

making alliances to develop education

Aims of the conference:

- To encourage connections to be made between principled interventions in schools, to do with education for democracy, sustainability and global citizenship, health promotion, anti-discrimination, non-violence, values, rights and inclusion.
- To consider how school curricula can be developed according to inclusive values at a time of curriculum constraint.
- To consider how schools can contribute to the development of communities and communities can support the development of schools.
- To reinforce a view of inclusion as concerned with putting inclusive values into action for all children and adults.
- To offer practical ways in which schools can develop themselves in accordance with their own deeply held principles.
- To launch the radically revised new version of the Index for Inclusion: developing learning and participation in schools.

This conference will be of interest to:

- teachers
- headteachers
- parents
- local authority staff
- all people and organisations concerned with the principled development of education whether under headings of inclusion, environmental sustainability, democracy, rights, values, global citizenship, health promotion, community and parental participation or anti-discrimination.

Cost

£95 +VAT including refreshments, lunch and materials; each delegate will receive a copy of the 3rd edition of the Index for Inclusion.
