Mental Health needs of Children and Young People with Learning Disabilities

23 - 25 May 2011

This three-day course focuses on policy and practice about the mental health needs of children and young people with learning disabilities. Participants will explore the knowledge base of mental health issues of children and young people with learning disabilities, practise assessment tools and work on case studies covering assessment, intervention and service development issues.

This course aims to enable participants to analyse and reflect on current practice and explore ways of improving their own practice and service.

WHO SHOULD ATTEND?

This is a course for health and social care practitioners working with children and young people with learning disabilities.

- Anyone who wants to learn more about the mental health needs of children and young people with learning disabilities
- Professionals from Child and Adolescent Mental Health Services
- Health and Social Care Service Providers and Service Managers and Commissioners

PARTICIPANTS WILL LEARN ABOUT:

- Policy and practice in children and young people services
- Mental health needs of children and young people with learning disabilities
- Assessment approaches
- Therapeutic interventions
- Specific health conditions
- Cultural diversity and competence
- Service development

This course will also provide an excellent opportunity to network and share good practice.

Comments from previous participants

"A very interesting and thought provoking three days. Group big enough to ensure plenty of dialogue, information, good practice etc. Group discussions were excellent, a great opportunity for networking. Excellent facilities. A lot of information and resources."

"Excellent overall and well organised. Very good opportunity to talk to 'like-minded' people"

"I found the three days informative and very helpful. The course materials were excellent and well prepared. A good range of speakers. I was engaged and challenged all three days – often surprised sessions were over so quick"

"Overall a lot of useful information. New knowledge gained which should lead to changes in thinking/practice"
