Personalised technology

Making it work

About the conference

Technology is increasingly being used to deliver services. However, it is also increasingly becoming the individual's right to choose how they are supported and whether or which technology should be used. This then becomes personalised technology that encompasses all technology platforms including high and low tech devices. The conference, focusing on case studies, will explore the wider context from ethics, individual rights, policy initiatives and practice.

Aims of the conference

The aim of the conference is to explore how personalised technology can enhance quality of life during a period of increasing economic pressure. Delegates will learn about

- Range of technology available
- Ethical framework
- EU perspective on individual rights around Personalised Technology (PT)
- Learning disability policy and PT
- Pressures and solutions for providers and commissioners
- Future developments
- Real live issues

Key themes

The themes will cover

- Philosophy and practice of the use of PT
- It will also strive to look at ways of breaking down the thinking in silos of disability types, departmental responsibilities, technology silos.

Who should attend?

- Family carers
- Paid carers
- Providers
- Practitioners
- Commissioners
- Policy makers
- Practice research academics
- Manufacturers

About Hft
