

Banking Matters to Me

The experiences of people with a learning disability seeking to use banking products and services

Banking Matters to Me

Why is banking important?

- for most of us part of everyday life have bank accounts
- if we have a job, buy or rent a house, pay bills; save for special things
- 1 in 12 households in the UK lack access to a bank account

Banking Matters to Me

Why the research project?

- there are around 1.5 million people with a learning disability in the UK
- many don't have bank accounts or are finding banking difficult

Banking Matters to Me

Why the research project?

- lack of a bank account can be a barrier to employment, increase vulnerability to loss or theft
- refusal of products or services

Banking Matters to Me

Why the research project?

- benefits needing to be being paid in
- wanting to get a job, buy or rent a house
- pay for support

Banking Matters to Me

Social Care Policy Agenda

- I want to live life my way
- I want more control over day to day things
- I want more say in where I live and who supports me
- I want more opportunity for work, leisure and citizenship
- I want a secure future

Banking Matters to Me

Banking & Finance Agenda

- We need to make a profit!
- We have to meet our targets
- We have developed a range of products
- We have to compete in the marketplace

Banking Matters to Me

What did we do?

- asked people to visit banks
- asked friends, families & supporters about their 'stories'
- talked to other organisations about banking, disability and financial inclusion
- talked to banks about what they think they do

Banking Matters to Me

What did we find?

- ✓ Some banks were really good
- 🗂️ Other banks were not so helpful

Banking Matters to Me

Key findings – important things to think about:

- 💡 Face to Face contact with a customer advisor
- 💡 Attitude and approach of bank personnel
- 💡 Understanding learning disability

Banking Matters to Me

Key findings – important things to think about:

 Accessible information

 Checking identity

 Use of PIN numbers

Banking Matters to Me

Key findings – important things to think about:

💡 *Availability of aids and adaptations to assist with banking

💡 Physical access to buildings and their facilities

Banking Matters to Me

Key findings – important things to think about:

- 💡 Consistency of response
- 💡 Capacity to manage an account
- 💡 Personal Account Information

Banking Matters to Me

Getting to know each other better - thinking about what we have in common:

- inclusion - financial and personal
- fair treatment
- respect
- safeguarding from abuse
- regulation

Banking Matters to Me

Treating Customers Fairly - aims

- Help customers understand features, benefits & risks of financial products
- Minimise sale of unsuitable products
- Plug gaps in staff training and awareness

Banking Matters to Me

Banking Code

- help me to choose products & services which meet my needs
- give me clear information about my account, terms and conditions
- be flexible about documents to prove my identity

BUT nothing about adjustments for my disability!

Banking Matters to Me

Responding to the Challenge!

Banking Matters to Me

The challenge for people with a learning disability:

- get to know more about money, banks and banking
- be willing to ask for help
- stand your ground over issues such as ID, capacity, advice & guidance

Banking Matters to Me

The challenge for families and supporters:

- support the person to understand about banks and banking
- at the bank support, and check out that the person understands, but don't answer questions for them!
- be ready to challenge false assumptions about capacity and ID
- be ready to engage with bank staff about the issues which really matter

Banking Matters to Me

The challenge for professional advisors:

- be prepared to promote what you can offer
- don't make assumptions about a person's learning disability - take a bit of time to get to know them.
- be ready to turn to their family or paid supporters for help.
- be willing to share your expertise with others and work together for solutions.

Banking Matters to Me

The challenge for banks and financial services:

- think about some easy changes you can make:
 - information about establishing identity
 - advising customers about alternatives to PIN
 - information about aids & adaptations to help

Banking Matters to Me

The challenge for banks and financial services:

- work through the implications of the legislation
- include information about learning disability in staff training
- signpost on company intranets to further help
- include people with a learning disability as advisors and trainers

Banking Matters to Me

The challenge for banks and financial services:

- think through the potential for increased business
 - there are increasing numbers involved
 - many in the future might have significant funds

Banking Matters to Me

Where next?

- Making Money Easy - website & picture bank
- Training materials for people with a learning disability and their supporters
- Information and resources for advice workers
- Promoting the issue amongst professionals

Banking Matters to Me

Is there an alternative?:

Do Credit Unions or similar 'micro-credit' organisations offer a real alternative to traditional high street banks?

Banking Matters to US!

Banking Matters to Me

Supported
By

Friends Provident Foundation

