

Changing social care for adults

This leaflet is for adults needing care and for carers.

We are the Law Commission. We think about how to change rules to make them better.
We want to change the rules for social care for adults. Social care is the care you might get from social services or the local council.

The rules at the moment are old. And they are hard for some people to understand. We want to make them better.

All our ideas for changes are written down in the consultation paper. You can ask us for this. But you can also read about our main ideas here.

We want to know what you think about our ideas to change care for adults. We want to know if you like them, or if you don't like them. We want to know if you have any ideas of your own about some good changes to make.

Here are some of our main ideas for changing care for adults.

Ideas about: Putting all the rules together

Let's write down all the rules about social care for adults in one place.

Let's write a list of main beliefs about how adult social care should be done. We can put these main beliefs in the same place as the rules. A main belief could be, 'all adults should be able to choose how their care is done.'

Do you think this is a good or bad idea? What do you think should be a main belief?

Ideas about: Finding out who needs care

The council should do a test to check if someone needs care. This test is called an assessment. We think the assessment should find out your needs and aims.

Maybe you should be allowed to do the assessment yourself.

Maybe the council should give you an assessment if you ask for one.

Maybe there should be a rule that says how the assessment must be done. For example, the rule could say how much time the assessment should take.

Do you think these are good or bad ideas?

Ideas about: Deciding who can get social care

Let's only use the assessment and a list of types of needs to decide if a person can get social care. This means that lots of the old rules will be thrown away. Only the assessment and the list of types of needs will matter.

If the assessment says that you need care, then let's tell the council they have to give you care.

Let's tell the council they have to work out a set amount of money to care for you.

Let's make sure that carers can get help in the same way.

Do you think these are good or bad ideas?

Ideas about: Help for carers

Some people take care of other people. These people are called carers.

Let's make sure that carers can get help if they need it. Let's make sure that a carer doesn't have to ask for help. The council should find out if a carer needs help.

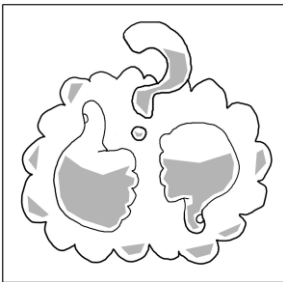

Do you think these are good or bad ideas? How can we tell that a person is a carer?

Ideas about: Care Plans. This is a plan for each person that says how their care will be done.

Let's tell the council to make a plan for each person who needs care. This plan is called a care plan.

Do you think this is a good or bad idea? Should we tell councils exactly how to make a care plan?

Ideas about: Keeping adults safe

Let's tell the local council they have to find out if you are being treated badly. Or if someone is not being cared for very well.

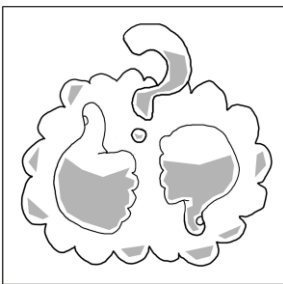

Do you think this is a good or bad idea? How should the council notice that a person is being treated badly?

Ideas about: Knowing about a disabled person

Let's write down the ways a disabled person is different from another person. This is so the local council can know if you are disabled.

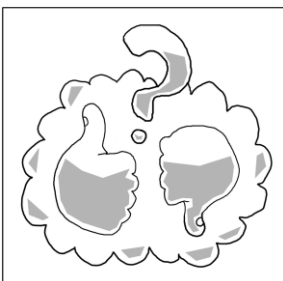

Do you think this is a good or bad idea? Should the council try to find out if a person is disabled?

Ideas about: Mobility of care services

Let's make it easy to get care even if you move to different areas.

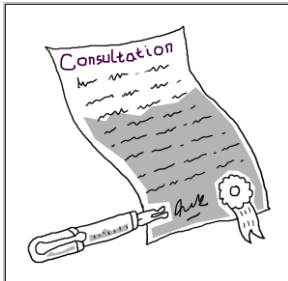

Do you think this is a good or bad idea?

We want to know what you think about our ideas for changing adult care.

Now you have read about some of our ideas for changes. We want to know if you like our ideas for changing adult care. We want to know if you have any ideas of your own about good changes to make.

All our ideas for changes are written down in the consultation paper. You have read about some of the main ideas in this leaflet.

We are asking what you think about the ideas for a fixed time only. This time is from 1st March 2010 to 1st July 2010. We will finish asking questions about the ideas on 1st July 2010

Then we will use all the ideas to make a plan. This plan will be called the final report. We hope we will have the final report ready in 2011.
