

Positive About Autism

This course is a springboard to a positive understanding of autism.

Our training is active, visual and fun. We don't use ten words where two will do. We're positive about autism and that's reflected in the style and content of our workshops and events. We believe in learning that's fun, enlightening and enabling. We explain autism and equip practitioners with some tools they can use right away. This course is for everyone who wants a positive introduction to a sometimes complex condition.

People with autism have said that the world, to them, is a mass of people, places and events which they struggle to make sense of, and which can cause them considerable anxiety. Children, young people and adults with autism think and learn differently, communicate differently and see, hear and experience the world differently.

This course is guaranteed to inspire confidence and fill you with ideas for new ways of working. Autism is a highly variable condition and you will get a chance to explore the autism spectrum through case studies, video, group work and presentation.

The course will look at sensory processing and sensitivity differences in autism and present some direct and environmental approaches and tools you can use.

Positive learning activities which utilise strengths and interests are the key to engaging people with autism. The course will teach you how to build a programme of activities that engage people with autism and build towards positive outcomes.

If you work in education, healthcare, social care, supported living then...
