

- Do you have questions that you would like us to ask the bosses to persuade you that employment for people with learning difficulty is possible?
- What else is good and bad?
- What do you think would help?

Have your say and support us at this mini conference and consultation event led by people who live the life. We promise a lively, fun and worthwhile session!

IC Jason Rhodes is a successful small business led by people with a learning difficulty. They are organising this event so they can write an easy read book about people with a learning difficulty getting paid work. The book will be published by the East Lancashire Learning Difficulty Partnership Board. We have offered three local disabled people temporary paid work to end of March to help us gather the information we need. The team have been working very hard on behalf of all people with a learning difficulty who want to work, and it is very very important to us.

Lots has been said, but how much is actually happening? We want your help to make this project successful and what you say will give us the questions and issues to put to local bosses and employment projects.

Do come along and let us know what you think. Together we will make a difference!!
