Hands off My Plan! Is a great new website designed, planned and run by people with learning disabilities

The idea is to help people stay in control of planning their lives, we think a really good way to make this happen is by people sharing stories and swapping ideas.

There are some stories already on the website but we want lots more see the website for details.

Check the website out, leave us a message, ask Stew a question, or just watch some of the videos.

We have tried to make this site really accessible, it works with a program called Browse Aloud which reads the words out to you, to make this work you need to go to www.browsealoud.com

We hope you enjoy it and visit us again!
