Publication opportunities for your research or practice on learning disabilities and offending behaviour

You are invited to submit papers to be considered for publication in Journal of Learning Disabilities and Offending Behaviour.

Publication with us has the following benefits:
- Dissemination of your research to a wide audience of researchers, practitioners and service providers, allowing you to demonstrate the social impact of your work
- Suggestions fed back to you via the peer review process (if you choose this route)
- Prompt turnaround to publication (typically less than a year)

About the journal

Journal of Learning Disabilities and Offending Behaviour is aimed at everyone who is involved in supporting people with learning disabilities who are involved (or in danger of becoming involved) with the criminal justice or forensic health systems.

The journal offers information on the latest research and policy, as well as practical advice about working effectively with these groups who often fall in the gap between mainstream learning disability and forensic services.

The journal's coverage includes:
- the nature of learning disabilities and offending behaviour – including recent research, epidemiological issues, the nature and type of offending and cross-cultural comparisons
- treatment approaches – what works?
- diagnostic issues
- risk assessment and management
- the needs and views of service users and carers.

The Journal welcomes the submission of papers that fit in to any of the following categories.
- Evidence-based research
- Review of relevant literature
- Small scale studies
- Descriptions of findings from audits
- Practice-based papers
- Case studies
- Opinion pieces, models of practice or policy initiatives
