

Free Complex Health Needs Seminars

The Foundation for People with Learning Disabilities and the UK Health and Learning Disabilities Network are pleased to announce 2 FREE seminars for families and people who work with children with complex health needs

Does your child or relative have complex health needs or is dependent on medical technology? Do you work with people with complex health needs or their families and want to know more about how you can support them?

If so, come along to the launch of our project. We have been working for 3 years on this Department of Health funded project which explored the support provided to young people with complex health needs and their families. This project has now come to an end and we are having two seminars to share the resources and learning from this work.

With expert speakers:

- Professor Bernie Carter – University of Central Lancaster. Integrating able bodied and disabled children within a wheelchair sports club.
- Dr Sue Kirk – University of Manchester. Technology dependent children and an ordinary life.
- Sarah Clayton – Postural Care Skills. Night time positioning and preventing changes in body shape.
- Jeanne Carlin – Independent consultant (author of Including Me, and Inclusion and Dignity) and parent. How to enable inclusion in schools and other children's services.
- Jill Davies, Foundation for People with Learning Disabilities. Description of the findings from a three year project called 'An Ordinary Life'.
- Hear the experiences of parents and young people who took part in the project.
