BUMP STOP WOMEN TOLD DON'T DRINK

DOZENS of men and women took part in a "pregnant pause" at Victoria station today to raise awareness of the dangers of drinking while expecting a baby. The group, who put balloons under their jumpers to appear pregnant, stood still for nine minutes at 9.09am on the ninth day of the ninth month at the National Organisation on Fetal Alcohol Syndrome UK event.

Evening Standard 9/9/10

At 9.09, 9th September 2011,

Join the crowd to freeze and pose pregnant for the press for 9 minutes. Let the world know, when pregnant women avoid alcohol for 9 months they will have healthier babies.

Avoiding alcohol during pregnancy will prevent children being born with alcohol related brain damage known as Fetal Alcohol Spectrum disorder (FASD)

Help raise awareness and prevent FASD!

All participants will receive a certificate.
