

Summer School

5th – 7th July 2010

Following the successful first Summer School in 2009, Dr Joan Murphy, Director of the National Institute for Intellectual Disability \(NIID\) is delighted to announce that the NIID will host its second Summer School on Inclusion from July 5-7, 2010 at Trinity College Dublin.

International speakers will include Prof. Mary Falvey and Dr. Richard Rosenberg of California State University, Prof. Susan Ryan, University of Vermont and Prof. Patricia O'Brien, University of Sydney.

During the three day Summer School, international speakers will join Irish experts to deliver workshops for people with intellectual disabilities, family members and professionals working in the area. Workshops include Person Centred Planning, Transitions to Independent Living, Early Intervention, Inclusive Research and Expressive Arts.

The fee for the Summer School will be €400 for professionals and €200 for people on disability allowance and their family members. Early booking discounts will be available. The full programme will follow shortly.

For further enquiries please contact

Ailish Kennedy at the NIID on +353 (0)1 896 3885 or by email to akenned@tcd.ie