Oska Bright is the first film festival anywhere in the world to be run by people with a learning disability. Now in its eleventh year, the Oska Bright Film Festival visits Tyneside Cinema in Newcastle.

Join us for two screenings of animations, documentaries, soap-operas and westerns, all created by film-makers with learning disabilities.

The event will feature a question and answer session lead by Matthew and Becky from Oska Bright. A great opportunity to find out more about what they do .
